以下の英文はアインシュタイン (Albert Einstein) がまだ才能を認められなかった頃を述べた文章である。以下の英文を読んで以下の問 A. ~ C. に答えなさい。

After he finished his studies in 1901, Einstein found that he could not get a job anywhere. At one time, he even thought about giving up his dream of being a scientist. He almost took a job selling insurance!

Einstein felt that he could not do anything well. Things got so bad that he even wrote a letter to his family saying that it would have been if he had never been born.

After finishing school, Einstein did many different jobs. He worked as a teacher and tutor, but he could not find a job as a scientist.

Einstein's father wanted to help him, and he wrote letters to some people that he knew. He asked one friend if he could use Einstein as a research assistant, but the friend said that he did not know of any jobs.

It is sad to say, but when Einstein's father died, he believed that his son would never be successful in life.

In 1902, Einstein moved to Bern, Switzerland. He could not get a job as a scientist, but his friend from school, Marcel Grossmann, helped him to find a job as a patent clerk. At this time, he also got married to Mileva.

Both Einstein's family and Mileva's told them that they should not get married, but they did not listen. They were in love, and they wanted to be together.

The Einsteins had their first child, Hans Albert, in 1904. Their second child, Eduard, was born in 1910. They did not have much money at all, and all of them had to live in just two rooms.

Einstein worked six days a week at his job. It was not an exciting job, but it was easy for him, and he had a lot of time to think. And what did he think about? The universe, of course.

Albert Einstein was a dreamer. He was not a scientist who worked in a lab doing experiments every day. He had no telescope or microscope. He was a man who liked to sit and think.

Einstein's great ideas did not just come from his intelligence or hard work. They came from his imagination and his creativity. In his free time, he thought about things like what it would be like to ride beside a beam of light.

Times were difficult, but soon Einstein was going to do some of his greatest work.
